

“It is only right that I should feel such admiration for you all – you hold me close to your hearts. And, since we are partners in this great work of grace, you have never failed to stand with me as I have defended and stood firm for the gospel – even from this prison cell.”

A Devotional by Major Beverly Ivany in "Words of Life"

In March, 2020, a global pandemic hit us all in ways which shook us to the core. We never could have imagined how horribly COVID-19 would impact us. Laptops and phones became even more essential for communication. Churches shut down. People suddenly lost their jobs. Others became sick. Many loved ones died.

Mental health issues rose to the surface – not only affecting adults but also teenagers and young children. And for certain, no one ever expected how long the pandemic would last – causing isolation, extreme loneliness, the loss of community as we once knew it.

What did get us through that first year and beyond? Grace alone! The assurance that God was with us, still pouring his blessings upon his people – yes, even in very desperate times. Although our song for today was written more than 20 years before the pandemic hit the world, perhaps the Lord knew we needed lyrics such as these in this beautiful song to get us through such a time.

Scott Wesley Brown, an American singer and songwriter, collaborated with another songwriter, Jeff Nelson to give us words and music which encourage our hearts and lift our spirits. The refrain begins:

Grace alone which God supplies, strength unknown he . will provide. (SASB 699)

God pours his grace upon us when it is needed so very much. And how we have needed his strength in the past 18 months! (Written by Major Bev for the fall of 2021) We will need God’s grace and strength for the days ahead too.

The refrain concludes:

Christ in us, our cornerstone, we will go forth in grace alone.

To that we all say a resounding ‘Amen!’ and continue to believe with the apostle Paul:

God is ready to overwhelm you with more blessings than you could ever imagine so that you’ll always be taken care of in every way and you’ll have more than enough to share.

70. Who's In Charge?

What then shall we say? Is God unjust? Not at all! For he says to Moses, I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion.

It does not, therefore, depend on man's desire or effort, but on God's mercy. For the Scripture says to Pharaoh: "I raised you up for this purpose, that I might display my power in you and that my name might be proclaimed in all the earth. Therefore God has mercy on whom he wants to have mercy, and he hardens whom he wants to harden.

One of you will say to me: "Then why does God still blame us? For who resists his will?" But who are you, O man, to talk back to God? "Shall what is formed say to him who formed it, 'Why did you make me like this?'" Does not the potter have the right to make out of the same lump of clay some pottery for noble purposes and some for common use? (Romans 9:14-21 NIV)

The Lord works out everything for his own ends---even the wicked for a day of disaster. (Proverbs 16:4 NIV)

See, it is I who created the blacksmith who fans the coals into flame and forges a weapon fit for its work. And it is I who have created the destroyer to work havoc; no weapon forged against you will prevail. (Isaiah 54:16-17 NIV)

"...for without me ye can do nothing." (John 15:5 KJV)

"A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven. (John 3:27 KJV)

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FRIENDS - The BAC Would Like Your Help.

For more than 15 years now, the Building Advisory Committee (BAC), consisted of a small group of individuals who had concerns about the Ottawa Citadel properties – Ottawa Citadel Church building and the Officers' Quarters. Because the number of members on this committee is decreasing, there is an increasing need for input from the Corps membership at large.

As you attend the Citadel each week, please take a moment to observe your surroundings and see whether you have

- Suggestions regarding the building.
- Concerns about what you see
- A sense that changes/improvements are needed
- General ideas of what we need in the Ottawa Citadel building.

Please speak to or email one the following people:

Linda Colwell (ljcolwell01@gmail.com)

Kenneth (Ken) McKinley

We join Ken's wife, Joyce, in the sorrow at his passing on Monday, March 11th. He was always such a distinguished-looking gentleman as he sat near the back on the Band side of the congregation on Sundays. He and Joyce were very kind to their friend Esther McTier who shared their Irish heritage.

Please remember Joyce and their children Gayle, Louise and Derek who will miss Ken so deeply.

PLEASE NOTE, FRIENDS: Anyone who would like to make their Prayer concerns known to the Corps Family through the Contact are encouraged to inform the Corps Office, Officers or contact the Editor directly.

UPDATE on BUILDING ISSUES

The Building Advisory Committee (BAC), last met on January 17th at 1:00 pm. The report below highlights the follow-up issues that have been undertaken since then.

- KITCHEN UPGRADE: Although the Building Advisory Committee has not met since January, one of the items on our last agenda was the upgrade of the Corps Kitchen. A number of the appliances have aged out of their useful service and have had to be replaced. Most recently, the exhaust hoods were upgraded by David Holland. The gas ranges will also be replaced in the near future as they are now nearly thirty years old.

AFTER

Our Building Maintenance Man, David Holland has been exceptionally busy as you will see in these pictures showing the installation of the new above-the-stove hoods and on the next page, the work he has done in removing the old radiators and completing the “make-good” work. Thank you, David!

UPDATE on BUILDING ISSUES – Continued

2. REMOVAL OF RADS IN SOUTH ROOMS : David has been very busy in recent weeks with this, yet another major project. The Corps building was initially heated by hot water. Now that the heat is vented into the building (heated and cooled by roof-mounted HV/AC units), the rads are just dust-catchers. The work goes beyond unfastening the actual covers and the radiators inside the wall-mounted metal covering, David has to attend to the make-good, removing the pipes and wall brackets, filling the holes and painting. Wasn't the original colour garish? Below are pictures of David at work:

The four pictures above are the in-progress shots of work in the Fellowship Hall, the Nursery and the Wiseman Room. David removed the existing plumbing, patched the holes and applied numerous coats of paint to cover the olive green colour that was on the wall. At the left, you will see the finished product.

3. CHANGES in BAC MEMBERSHIP: First, the downside – After many years of participating in this committee and making valuable contributions, Greg and Paula Christiansen have retired from the BAC. Their valuable input will be missed. On behalf of the Ottawa Citadel Corps, we express our thanks to the Christiansens for all they have done for the improvement of the Corps building.

On the good news side, Neil Lewis has agreed to join the Building Advisory Committee. We look forward to his contributions and the wisdom that comes from his many years of Salvation Army Officership. Neil distinguished himself in the Army's response to 9/11 at Ground Zero where the FBI recognized his exceptional abilities and asked that he spend a second rotation and assigned him to the Mayor's Office in New York City.

CHARACTERISTICS of GOOD LEADERS – Part 3

What Do Effective Leaders Do?

(Materials in this Document were authored by Kendra Cherry)

Effective leaders develop a new way of working by tuning in to outside reality and not only what happens within the bounds of an organization. They visualize and design the big picture in their mind first and then create a narrative for everyone to align their work to it. Effective leadership requires discipline and practice much like any other habit-building.

Effective Leaders Value Contribution

Effective leaders execute from a place of trust, understanding, learning, contribution, courage and not from fear, ego, control, perfectionism. They value integrity and respect people who have the desire to do the right thing.

They do not involve in wordsmithery or other pretentious mechanisms to achieve what they want. They believe in contribution and inspire others by themselves being part of it. Leaders who value true contribution are aware that they don't know everything and engage themselves in self-directed learning without fear or burden.

Effective Leaders Do the Right Things

Doing one thing right is more important than doing many things wrong. Effective leaders set priorities well and do first things first. They avoid crisis by planning for the future, spend time on activities that have long term benefits and steer clear of work that does not align with their goals. They do not hesitate in saying no to requests that do not line up with the (group's) goals and vision.

Effective leaders learn to do the right thing through self-awareness and acceptance of their blind spots. Their attitude to share information, encourage and solicit feedback and value different viewpoints helps them in making the right decisions that are congruent with their goals.

Effective Leaders Learn to Manage Their Time

Time is scarce, it's irreplaceable and leaders will always be in short supply of time if they do not learn to manage it.

Establishing long-term strategy and determining goals that will move (an) organization to the next level requires focused thinking and decision-making. Such proactiveness requires dedicated blocks of time without interruption.

Therefore, the effective leaders identify where their time goes and take control of it by cutting back on areas which place unnecessary demands on their time. They then organize and devote this time to future-looking activities. They make the best use of their time by attending to conflict at its source and not delaying in the hope that it will resolve itself. In his book, The Effective Executive, Peter Drucker provides great insights on managing time:

Effective Leaders Learn to Manage Their Time - Concluded

“Make your time count. The secret of people who do so many difficult things, is that they do only one thing at a time; they refuse to let themselves be squandered away in small dribbles (that) are no time at all. This requires the discipline to consolidate time into blocks of three primary types. First, create unbroken blocks for individual think time, preferably during the most lucid time of the day; these pockets of quietude might be only ninety minutes, but even the busiest (leader) must do them with regularity. Second, create chunks of deliberately unstructured time for people and the inevitable stuff that comes up. Third, engage in meetings that matter, making particular use of carefully constructed standing meetings that can be the heartbeat of dialogue, debate, and decision; and use some of your think time to prepare and follow up.” (Peter Drucker)

(N.B. This section on time management was originally intended for full-time leaders and managers. The principles, however, are useful for all of us – even in our day-to-day living.)

Effective Leaders Synergize

An organizational strategy spans multiple teams and functions that must come together to define and embrace it. Effective leaders open lines of communication, bring the collaboration and synergies required across multiple functions to devise an effective, forward-looking plan. They focus on goals and output and not on tasks. They are transparent in their decision-making process and provide enough context to their people on their rationale behind their choices. They create a culture of “Why” and encourage everyone to ask it repetitively before committing to work, stick with priorities and learn to say no to things that do not align with their goals. (Editor’s note: Leaders are not afraid to justify their reasons for their course of action.)

Effective Leaders (Select) and Grow People

A strategy without the right people to execute it is of no use. Effective leaders understand this very well and spend a good part of their time in (choosing) and growing people. While putting together recruitment strategies, they invest in providing accurate job descriptions that can attract realistic people who are best suited to do the job. They invest time in understanding the needs and aspirations of its people and put their strengths to use, thereby making their weakness harmless by exploiting the best in them.

In the next edition of the Contact, we will wrap up the “Leadership Series” for the summer with a two-part entry focusing first on “Balancing Effectiveness and Efficiency” and second on a few personal experiences the editor has gleaned in his forty-five years in various leadership roles combined with a few suggestions you may want to try for yourself.
